

The Dean of Arts and Sciences and the W&M Washington Office are seeking applications from faculty interested in teaching the DC Summer Session in summer 2011.

The College offers summer school classes in its offices in Washington, DC, taught by William & Mary faculty, to provide students a similar academic experience to courses available on campus. Classes are also open to selected students from the Northern Virginia Community College system as part of a co-enrollment agreement.

To meet demand from both W&M and NVCC students, we are particularly interested in applications for GER courses -- especially GERs 4b, 6, and 7. Classes that meet major requirements are also encouraged. However, all applications for courses that appeal to a broad cross-section of W&M and NVCC students will be considered.

Topics of particular interest include:

- Creative Writing
- Public Speaking
- Business
- Math Powered Flight
- 2-Dimensional Art
- International Relations
- International Politics
- Political Theory
- U.S. Politics and Federal/Congressional Affairs

DC Summer Session courses that have the most appeal to students are those that offer GER credit, present material in innovative and engaging ways, and take advantage of resources in the Washington Metropolitan area.

Classes are offered in the later afternoons and evenings – generally 3-5pm, 5-7pm and 7-9pm – Monday through Thursday, leaving mornings and afternoons open for personal research and writing projects. The Summer Session in Washington, DC will follow the same calendar as summer school on main campus:

1st Session – May 31 through July 1, 2011

2nd Session – July 5 through August 5, 2011

Faculty may apply to teach up to two courses per session. Courses and salary will be guaranteed, regardless of the number of students enrolled. Also, faculty may consider proposing non-guaranteed weekend or one-credit courses.

For guaranteed courses, faculty compensation will include the main campus summer school salary and a $30 class day per diem. Also, faculty may receive up to $2,000 in reimbursement per summer session with receipt for DC-area rent and parking. (Faculty with established housing in the DC area are not eligible for this reimbursement.)

Applications -- including a CV, proposed course number and title, session choice and brief course description, including any GER course credit details – should be submitted to Susan Grainger, Scheduling Coordinator, by Thursday, October 21, 2010 at daeckx@wm.edu .
