TERM DISTINGUISHED PROFESSORSHIPS
FOR ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS

Term distinguished professorships are designed both to recognize and reward excellence in research or creative activity and a demonstrated commitment to teaching, and to encourage faculty to remain at the College. Recipients of these professorships will already enjoy a reputation for excellence in scholarship and teaching which suggests that they may be candidates for other distinguished professorships in the future.

The professorships will be awarded for a single three-year term and are not renewable. For the duration of the term, the holders will receive annually a $5,000 salary supplement and a $3,000 research fund.

1. Eligibility:

Members of the faculty who are already tenured associate professors and those who will hold that rank with tenure by the effective date of the appointment (1 September 2011), including past but not current incumbents of the Term Professorships for Excellence in Teaching.

2. Nomination Process:

The deans will forward nominations to the Provost. In Arts and Sciences, the department chairs will forward their nominations to the Dean of the Faculty.

Nominations must include:

- the nominee’s c.v.
- a detailed explanation of the relevance and importance of the nominee’s scholarly and teaching contributions to the department or school, the university, and the discipline.
- supporting, external documents (at a minimum, three) attesting to the nominee’s scholarly reputation, e.g. external evaluation written within the past three years in connection with the individual’s tenure review, published reviews of the nominee’s work, readers’ reports on manuscripts, agency reviews of grants, etc.

Nominations must be received in the Provost’s Office no later than the end of the day on January 10, 2011.
