

"I felt that this summer sent me on a career path and allowed me to find a population of people that I love...this experience has changed my outlook on life as well as made me a better person."

Dear Chairperson,

Ramapo for Children is a New York-based non-profit organization that serves children, adolescents, and young adults with diverse needs and abilities, including those on the autism spectrum. We offer numerous unique job and internship opportunities in our summer and year-round programs on our Rhinebeck, NY campus. Through summer jobs and internships at Camp Ramapo, our residential camp program, students learn to support individuals with a wide range of abilities, while learning about themselves along the way.

Many of our alumni describe their work at Ramapo as incredibly formative both personally and professionally, and attribute the launch of their careers in psychology, social work, education, and human services to Ramapo. Along with our year-round staff and board members, these alumni make up a robust network of professionals.
