Your generous support helped make fiscal year 2012 a great success for William & Mary.

You, along with a record of more than 30,300 supporters of William & Mary, gave $43.6 million to the College in fiscal year 2012, providing critical resources for innovative programs and initiatives. The effort represents a 6.5 percent increase from fiscal year 2011, which was $41 million. For the first time in the university’s history, William & Mary has topped $40 million in private gifts for each of four consecutive years. This year also marked exciting new records for the most alumni donors (17,955), and the most undergraduate alumni donors (13,884) to the College.

Gifts to William & Mary's various annual funds increased 8.3 percent in fiscal year 2012. Annual or unrestricted gifts provide the College with the greatest flexibility to meet its most pressing needs.

"We continue to press forward strongly on the philanthropic front," said William & Mary President Taylor Reveley. "W&M is grateful to all those who contributed during the fiscal year that ended June 30. As financial pressures continue to grow on American higher education, especially state schools, the College depends increasingly on support from alumni and friends to sustain its excellence as a Public Ivy. Indeed, the abiding loyalty and commitment of W&M people to the College will be absolutely central to its future."

To all those who have walked along its red brick walks and across its verdant lawns, William & Mary has always been, and will always be, an incomparable place - a place where great things happen.

Because of your commitment, William & Mary is able to impact the next generation of leaders who will begin their careers ready to create sustainable, real-world solutions to social, economic, and environmental issues.

Thank you for your support of William & Mary!
