William & Mary continues to enroll a very strong and diverse class

• We received 14,645 applications during the 2018-2019 cycle. The students selected for admission from this outstanding pool of applicants are among the best and brightest young minds in the country.

• Current W&M students come from 49 states, D.C., and 68 foreign countries.

• 30% of our entering students self-identify as students of color, another 7% are international students, and 10% are first-generation college students, all contributing to our incredibly diverse and vibrant campus community.

William & Mary is affordable

• W&M typically meets 100% of demonstrated financial need for in-state students, and through our William & Mary Promise, we've increased grants and reduced loans for entering Virginians.

• Among Virginia public universities we have the lowest average net cost of attendance for Virginia families earning $110,000 or less.

• We're ranked the #1 public university in Virginia by The New York Times (2017) for commitment to Access and Affordability for low and middle-income students.

Greetings from William & Mary! As we embark on another exciting and rewarding year here in Williamsburg, I wanted to personally take a few minutes to update you on some important happenings on and around campus.

There has never been a more exciting time to be an undergraduate at William & Mary. Ongoing investments in academic and student life have created new opportunities to serve students' needs in and out of the classroom. These innovations are just one part of our continuing mission to build on the successes of our past in creating an even stronger future.

While there are several initiatives currently underway around campus, I would like to focus on three specific items here that I believe are particularly important to our students:
