

The J. Binford Walford Scholarships for the Study of Architecture

History: (est. 1979) The bequest of J. Binford Walford provides an annual fund for scholarships for the study in architectural programs at the College. Usually, the scholarships will be in the form of merit awards intended to provide recognition and encouragement to worthy students. The number and size of awards can vary each year.

The scholarship is renewable only through application and only if the student maintains his or her interest and commitment to architecture. The individual student's continued study of architecture and progress will be reviewed by the student's advisor, usually the Chair, in consultation with the student's professors in architecture.

Applications will be judged on the basis of merit by the Walford Architectural Scholarship Committee comprising a professor of architectural design, a professor of architectural history, and the Chair of the Dept. of Art & Art History. Recommendations by the Committee will then be forwarded to the Dean of the faculty for approval, notification, and the awarding of the scholarship.

Eligibility: While it is generally expected that the applicants will be concentrators who apply in their sophomore or junior years, latitude is left for the truly exceptional student, firmly committed to a career in architecture (including entering freshmen) to apply.
