Course Description: Urban economics uses fundamental economic theory to model the location decisions of utility maximizing households and profit maximizing firms. These models are then analyzed to gain a better understanding of why cities exist, what causes cities to grow or shrink, and the effect of public policy on the health of a city and its populace.

Course Objectives: Develop a working knowledge of the tools used by urban economists to evaluate the location decisions of households and firms, and how those decisions affect the outcomes of particular urban environments.

Students will have the opportunity to practice and hone their use of microeconomic fundamentals (economic reasoning, graphical modeling, game theory, etc.).

Students will have the opportunity to experience a collaborative working environment.

Prerequisite: Working knowledge of microeconomic fundamentals

Important Dates: Add/Drop - 9/7. Withdraw – 10/26

Course Structure and Assessment: This class combines lectures with in-class project based learning. Students will work in groups to provide an economic analysis of a chosen U.S. city. In-class lectures will provide the tools needed to perform the analysis. Exams will be used for individual level assessment.

The below descriptions, dates and totals are approximates and subject to minor adjustments.

Assignment Type &amp; Amount	Points (each)
Quizzes (2)	15
Midterm Exam (1)	30
Comprehensive Final Exam (1)	60
Project Presentation 1 (group)	15
Project Presentation 2 (group)	30
Project Executive Summary (1, group)	30
Project Peer Review	12
Total	207

Quizzes: Prior to Midterm Exam and between Midterm and Final.

Midterm Exam: Week 6 or 7

Final Exam: 12/17/18, 9am

Project Details: Each group will examine a particular US city using fundamental microeconomic tools. The examination of the city will be broken up into three parts

1. Early history or why does the city exist?
2. Recent history / current situation.
3. Future / where is the city going and what can be done to help resolve current ills.)

There will be a presentation during the first half of class quickly discussing the history. Late in the semester a second presentation will discuss the other two points. Additionally an “executive summary” of the presentations will be due late in the semester. (This is a high level overview of the main points in your presentations. The inclusion of maps and graphs could be helpful.

You will mostly be graded on your ability to use economic tools to explain the how and whys of your city (I want to see your ideas not just what others say), but I will also look for presentation skills and “excitement” you create regarding this presentation (why is this city interesting, what graphs and pictures and maps do you show.)

Grading Scale:	A = $\geq 94\%$	A- = $90\% - < 94\%$
	B+ = $87\% - < 90\%$	B = $83\% - < 87\%$
	B- = $80\% - < 83\%$	C+ = $77\% - < 80\%$
	C = $73\% - < 77\%$	C- = $70\% - < 73\%$
	D+ = $67\% - < 70\%$	D = $63\% - < 67\%$
	D- = $60\% - < 63\%$	F = $< 60\%$

* grades are not rounded to the nearest percent

Grading (for quiz and exams): 0 – 3 scale. 0 = nothing, 1 = economic thought, 2 = economic thought that is “in the right direction”, 3 = complete and correct economic thought (based on in-class discussions)

Text: (Recommended) O’Sullivan, A. Urban Economics (any edition will do, but I will mostly work out of the 8th)

Supplemental Material:

Jackson, Kenneth. Crabgrass Frontier. 1985. Oxford University Press

- Great read on the suburbanization of the US during most of the 20th century

Jacobs, Jane. The Death and Life of Great American Cities. 1961. Random House

- Influential observations of a non-academic. Her thoughts still resonate with urban theorists today

Glaeser, Edward. Triumph of the City. 2011. The Penguin Press

- Contemporary king of Urban Economics

Florida, Richard. The Rise of the Creative Class. 2002. Basic Books

- Urban Sociologist that adds useful elements that Glaeser often brushes aside
