I. Morocco Program

- John Eisele presented a proposal for a William and Mary language program in Morocco. Discussion focused on issues such as: student demand; the length of the program; the kinds of courses offered; the availability of WM faculty directors; an option to have students do research; the possibility of a one credit course on a topics such as multiculturalism; the rationale for accelerated language programs abroad following the Middlebury summer school model; whether the authors of the proposal are flexible in terms of the amount of teaching done by the faculty director; the cost of financing the program.
- The committee would like John and Driss to further address: the program's sustainability; the length of the program; the budget; the possibility of a partnership with another university; and program staff. The committee asks John and Driss to meet with Reves Center staff and submit a revised proposal by September 1.

II. St. Petersburg Program

- The committee voted to approve Dasha Khakunova as the director of the 07 program in St. Petersburg in the event Bella Ginzburgsky-Blum cannot direct the program.
