W&M DC Winter Seminars
Cost to Students for 3-credit seminar

The class fee for the DC Winter Seminars is $2,500.00.

- A non-refundable $500 deposit is due:
  - May 11, 2018 for early application admits
  - October 22, 2018 for regular application admits
- The balance due of $2,000 will be billed on your November (early and regular admits) W&M Student Accounts eStatement and is due:
  - December 1, 2018 for regular application admits
- If you choose to live in DC housing provided by the W&M Washington Center during the Seminars, there is the additional non-refundable cost of $650 for a double room or $1,000 for a single room (pending availability).
  - Billed on your November W&M Student Accounts eStatement and is due December 1, 2018 for both early and regular application admits

*PLEASE NOTE: Students who wish to drop the class have until the drop deadline on 11/15 at 11:59pm to do so. If students drop by this deadline, the course fee will be removed, but students will forfeit their previously paid $500 deposit. Students who drop after the 11/15 at 11:59pm deadline will still be responsible for all class fees and housing charges. No refunds will be provided, no charges removed after 11/15 at 11:59pm. 1/5 is the last day to withdraw from the course.

What your $2,500 will Cover
In addition to the academic credit you’ll receive from the College for completing the DC Winter Seminars, your $2,500 covers:

- Lunch each class day
- Program dinners on closing night and select evenings during the week
- Subsidized social/cultural events through the seminars
- A dinner networking event with W&M DC area alums in related field
- A small Metro pass to get you started with DC area travel

Day-to-Day Costs in DC
The average cost per student will vary. However, most students report spending roughly $70 per week on "groceries and other necessities" and about $40.00 per week on Metro fare.
