

D&I Leadership Council

Natoya Haskins – Mason School of Education

Dr. Natoya Haskins graduated from James Madison University with a B.S., Virginia Commonwealth University with a M.Ed., Virginia Union University with a M.Div. in Theology, and William and Mary with a Ph.D in Counselor Education and Supervision. Dr. Haskins was on faculty at the University Georgia for five year before join the William and Mary faculty in 2016. She is currently is an Associate Dean and Director of Diversity and Inclusion at the College of William and Mary.

As a first-generation college student, who worked for many years as a school counselor with youth in urban communities, Dr. Haskins' life's work has centered around addressing issues of equity and creating supportive professional and clinical experiences for individuals to become their best selves. In the academy, Dr. Haskins' efforts have focused on culturally responsive curriculum strategies and programming. In this regard, she has served the profession with an eye on cultural responsiveness and inclusivity.

Dr. Haskins has served as the president of the Southern Association for Counselor Education and Supervision (2017-2018). At the national level, Dr. Haskins serves as the Treasurer for the Association for Multicultural Counseling and Development (2020-2021). Dr. Haskins was recently elected the president of the Association of Counselor Education and Supervision (2022-2023). She has created several initiatives to include the Social Justice and Diversity Research Fellows Program and the Metamorphosis National Affinity Group. Dr. Haskins also serves on the executive committee for the local chapter of the NAACP.