Please list two emerging international security challenges facing the United States or international community. You should describe each challenge in the form of two tweets of no more than 230 characters in length.

PIPS defines international security broadly—including such topics as: cybersecurity, climate change, foreign aid, immigration, international development, military affairs, public diplomacy, and pandemics. Examples of previous projects can be found on the PIPS website in the White Papers section.

This document allows us to assess your creativity, knowledge of international affairs, and ability to communicate succinctly. We encourage you to be as creative as possible when identifying an emerging security challenge.

NOTE: This document should be submitted to Tribe Careers as a pdf document.
