For a quarter of a century, the Division of Sports Medicine at the College of William & Mary has hosted Cramer Athletic Training Workshops for high school students interested in athletic training and sports medicine. Certified athletic trainers (AT's) from a variety of professional settings conduct lectures and laboratories on emergency first aid, taping and wrapping skills, and the prevention, care, and rehabilitation of athletic injuries. With this wealth of experience, the Division of Sports Medicine at the College of William & Mary has teamed up once again with Cramer Products, Inc. and has taken the workshop to new heights and presents the 16th Annual Sports Medicine Workshop!
