A detailed map of the Chesapeake Bay region. The Potomac River flows from the northwest into the bay, with Washington, D.C., and Alexandria, VA, situated along its banks. The York River flows from the south into the bay, with cities like Yorktown and Newport News located nearby. The map shows a network of highways, including I-495, I-66, I-95, and I-86. Other cities visible include Bethesda, Arlington, Culpeper, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Williamsburg, Cape Charles, and Virginia Beach. The map also shows the surrounding landscape, including forests and parks.
